Introduction

My work seeks to demonstrate that the world can be designed as a functionally efficient meta-system. In effect, a human steering wheel for this meta-system requires a massive, multi-person online resource management game. World Game is the meat upon the bones of a theoretical global computer network.

Final Thoughts

In this time of great chaos, we are all faced with the challenge of simply surviving day by day. I am convinced the work of R. Buckminster Fuller, and my own extension of that work for modern thinkers, is the most specific voice of reason we have in terms of human knowledge, and I take great pride in my theses regarding World Game. While all of this is true, let us be reminded of the wise words of the poetess from Federico Fellini's La Dolce Vita [The Sweet Life]:

[Original Italian]

Poetessa: Ah, dobbiamo tutti pensare al domani ma senza dimenticare di vivere oggi!

[English Translation]

Poetess: Ah, we must all think toward tomorrow, but without forgetting to live today!
